

Phoenix Arise

©2005

Lisa Aschmann, Nashville Geographic, ASCAP

Mark Simos, Devachan Music, BMI

A long time ago
A magic bird was born with golden wings
Every thousand years
Her nest becomes her funeral pyre
A fiery torch burning bright
Yet something's living in the light
After every night comes the morn
To her own self she is reborn

Chorus 1: Phoenix arising from the flames
 Spread your wings and fly
 No fire nor flood nor hurtful things
 Shall cause your hope to die
 Phoenix arising from the ashes
 Of all that you've loved and lost
 The storm-driven and the tempest-tossed
 Phoenix arise

In every heart
There beats a will to conquer grave despair
And so we rebuild
Our only refuge is our love
In all this grief, all this pain
Something living still remains
Through the din and wreckage of all things
We can hear the rustle of your wings

Chorus 2: Phoenix arising from the flames
 Spread your wings and soar
 Sorrow may have its many names
 But joy has many more
 Phoenix arising from the ashes

Of all that you've loved and lost
The storm-driven and the tempest-tossed
Phoenix arise

Chorus 1: Phoenix arising from the flames
Spread your wings and fly
No fire nor flood nor hurtful things
Shall cause your hope to die
Phoenix arising from the ashes
Of all that you've loved and lost
The storm-driven and the tempest-tossed
Phoenix arise